

DID YOU KNOW?

Nicotine's release of pleasure-inducing chemicals, when smoking nicotine products, feels good in the short-term and can appear to have a positive effect on stress.

However, it's important to note that nicotine use does not alleviate stress in the long-term and, instead, can keep one in the cycle of nicotine addiction.

