News for friends of the Medical Center.

UR Medicine opens region's first ambulatory orthopaedic surgery center

The new center is the first in the region designed and built specifically for patients with mobility problems who need orthopaedic outpatient surgery, and the first to combine outpatient surgery with complementary services. It's also the first surgery center in the world to include a Clean Cube™ operating room – which uses advanced, automated disinfection and airflow for the highest level of infection prevention.

Could exercise be a potent weapon against neurodegenerative conditions?

Studies are showing that not only can exercise reduce the risk of neurodegenerative diseases, such as dementia and Parkinson's, but it might also slow the progress of these diseases after diagnosis. Experts, including Jamie Adams, MD, associate professor in the Department of Neurology and the Center for Health and Technology at URMC, reflect on the benefits of exercise in MedicalNewsToday.

Strong Memorial Hospital added 34 new photos to the album: Strong Expansion: Whack The Wall. February 24 at 3:40 PM

Tear down that wall! Our community long outgrew our emergency department. It has been too small for our patients and care teams so we had our ED staff take out their frustrations with the first blows of demolition on the #StrongExpansion project. They're tearing down the wall as we get ready to build a larger space.
