CARE resident Garrett Coles was interviewed by WXXI radio's Michelle Faust about his project to increase use of high quality early childhood education by foster care children. Garrett has been working with the Rochester City School District, Monroe County Child and Family Services, Mt. Hope Family Center, Action for a Better Community and the Early Childhood Development Initiative. Click on the picture to read or hear the interview.

Emily Nebzydoski, M.D. was selected to give a poster presentation on her CARE Project at the 2016 Pediatric Academic Societies conference in Baltimore. She arranged for our pediatrics residents to receive training in contraceptive implant insertion. Rochester is the national leader in this area.

CARE resident Catherine Agricola, M.D. received the 2016 Medicine-Pediatrics Program Directors Association Walter W. Tunnessen, Jr., MD Award. She is being honored for work with KidsThrive585, an independent non-profit organization, which was started by former CARE resident Megan Callanan Lasaponara, M.D.

Dr. Diana Miller, currently a fellow in pediatric endocrinology, received the Evan Calkins, MD Fellowship for Community Based Research from the University at Buffalo School of Medicine, for her project entitled "Reaching outcomes in adolescents with diabetes through home telehealth visits". This is a continuation of her CARE project.
